Minors and Disabled Adults

When working with clients who are minors or adults who are legally incapable of giving consent, I will obtain consent from a parent or legally authorized representative. For children who are clients, it will be determined the extent that he or she has an understanding of privacy based on chronological age and cognitive ability. If the child has no concept of privacy, then I am free to share information with parents without informing the child first.

Pre-adolescents and adolescents will be seen on an "informed forced consent" in that information will be handled as confidential, but it is up to the therapist to decide what information is pertinent to share with the parents. Sometimes it is in the best interest of the minor client not to disclose all information to the parents that the child shares with the therapist so as to strengthen the therapeutic alliance and work through issues with the minor. Parents of the minor will be given updates of progress of goals and treatment plans on a scheduled basis. When it is determined that information should be shared for therapeutic reasons or as part of family counseling, the client will be informed and consulted and/or included in sharing the information to the parents or guardians. This of course, is superseded by any of the exceptions of confidentiality (danger to self or others, abuse, or court order) as stated in the above paragraph.

When working with two or more persons who have a relationship such as in a group, family or marriage, I will clarify at the outset who is the primary client as an individual or family unit. I will not share confidences by one family or group member to others outside the family without permission or prior agreement of all members except described in legal exceptions of threat of serious harm to self or others as described above in paragraph one.
